

ĆELÁÑENEL: A Field Course in the Re-emergence of WŚÁNEĆ Law
September 2021

Application and Registration Information

PLEASE REVIEW CAREFULLY BEFORE SUBMITTING APPLICATION

Course Instructor: Rob Clifford

Course Description:

The Allard School of Law is offering ĆELÁÑENEL: A Field Course in the Re-emergence of WŚÁNEĆ Law during the Fall term of 2021. This course is offered in partnership with the WŚÁNEĆ Nation and the generous financial support of the Victoria Foundation. ĆELÁÑEN means “ancestry or birthright” and ĆELÁÑENEL means “of the ancestor’s cultural ways” or “of the birthrights”. This intensive place-based course will be taught in the WŚÁNEĆ community on the Saanich Peninsula and will include a number of trips to local mountains, rivers, and a 3-night camping trip on the Gulf Islands. This course is focused on WŚÁNEĆ People’s own laws, and the ways in which those laws are generated and carried forward. Consideration will also be given to the colonial relationship and power structures between the WŚÁNEĆ and Canadian legal traditions, as well as the opportunities and barriers this creates for the revitalization of WŚÁNEĆ law. A principal purpose of the course will be to develop a collaborative community-based legal education model. During seven weeks of the course students will work under the supervision of WŚÁNEĆ community members in learning and applying WŚÁNEĆ law to community-based projects identified as important by the WŚÁNEĆ community.

This course will be a term long externship and will comprise a full 15 credits for the semester. 11 of those credits will be counted as a clinical externship and graded on a pass/fail basis. The remaining 4 credits will be counted as an externship reflection and will require the completion of a graded final paper due at the end of the exam period. The first three to four weeks of the course involve an intensive land-based learning component where students will have 6 hours of contact per day, which will also include skills-based components in preparation for student community projects. Class contact hours over the next eight weeks will fluctuate while students are engaged as community-based learners and participants working in small groups of 2 or 3 directly with WŚÁNEĆ elders and knowledge holders on identified projects. Students will be expected to treat this eight-week period as a full-time educational experience, devoting at least 30 hours a week to their community-based work and research. During this eight-week period, we will also meet as a group once per week to hear from guest speakers, to debrief as a group regarding the ongoing community projects, or to go on the occasional land-based outing. The last week of the class will once again involve a 6 contact-hours-a-day classroom component. Students will make presentations and engage in discussions with one another and select community members related to their eight-week placement experiences. We will open and close the course in a culturally appropriate way.

Learning Outcomes:

During this course students will undertake and learn the following:

- Identify W̱SÁNEĆ legal principles from a W̱SÁNEĆ perspective;
- Begin to appreciate how W̱SÁNEĆ legal principles correlate with W̱SÁNEĆ worldview;
- Develop a conceptual framework for understanding Indigenous legal traditions;
- Begin to develop methodologies to understand and access Indigenous law;
- Begin to learn and apply W̱SÁNEĆ law in a community context;
- Critically evaluate the colonial relationship and power structures between the W̱SÁNEĆ and Canadian legal traditions; and
- Engage in self-reflection regarding our individual situatedness within the relationships, as well as power structures, identified throughout the course.

Important Practical Information:

This externship will take place in the W̱SÁNEĆ community on southern Vancouver Island, approximately 30 minutes north of Victoria. Allard students will be provided accommodation for the semester at no additional cost. Arrangements are currently being negotiated for students to be housed in cabins on James Island (a private Gulf Island located in Haro Strait). Students will be transported to and from the island on a daily basis, as part of this accommodation. Should students want, or require, accommodation other than these cabins, they will be responsible for arranging and paying for those alternative accommodations. Students will also be responsible for their own travel costs between Vancouver and Vancouver Island at the outset and end of the course. Students may return to the lower mainland on weekends, should they choose to but will need their own transportation. Finally, students will also be responsible for the cost of meals throughout the term (with a few exceptions). Each cabin is equipped with a kitchen and food can be purchased while on the main island at grocery stores in nearby towns, within a 10-minute drive. More detailed information on costs and other information is indicated below.

Eligibility and Admission:

In fall of 2021, the W̱SÁNEĆ law field course will be open to both Allard Law and University of Victoria upper-year law students (2L and 3L). Up to 7 to 8 students will be accepted from each institution, with a total of up to 14-16 students. There are no pre-requisites for this course.

An intensive field course of this nature requires students who are interested, dedicated, and respectful while engaging and learning in an Indigenous community. Students interested in this externship must submit a course application (included below) along with a one-page (maximum) written statement detailing why they are interested in taking the course in order to be eligible to participate. The application must be submitted no later than Friday, May 7th at 4:00 p.m. by email to Rob Clifford at clifford@allard.ubc.ca. Offers to participate in the externship will be made by May 14th.

Credits, Tuition and Cost:

Students who are accepted into the WSÁNEĆ law field course will be registered by Student Services in LAW 379: Externship (11 credits) and Law 380: Externship Reflection (4 credits), for a total of 15 credits. Students will pay full-time tuition for 15 credits tuition to UBC for the Fall 2021 term.

The WSÁNEĆ law field course will cover costs for transportation to all field trip locations, such as the ferry fees to the Gulf Islands. Students must pay for any additional personal costs during the course, including daily meals, and any additional travel for personal reasons.

Teaching Methodology and Evaluation Method:

Teaching methodology will include land-based pedagogy, class discussion, lectures, guest lectures, oral presentations, in-class exercises, film, and a number of field trips. Course materials will include articles, excerpts from books, and other resources materials. Students will be required to purchase a few reference books relating to WSÁNEĆ law and culture, which will serve as excellent resources for the course, community projects, and final papers.

The WSÁNEĆ law field course will be graded on a pass/fail basis. All students are expected to attend all classes and trips, and to participate in class discussions. Students will keep weekly reflection journals during their community-based projects, which will contribute to our weekly group debriefing sessions. At the completion of their eight-week community-based projects students will provide an accessible memo or report directed to their community supervisor regarding the work they have undertaken (approximately 10 pages). During the final week of the course, students will also provide a one-hour oral presentation (as a group) to the rest of the class outlining their particular community projects/placements. Students will also complete a final academic paper (approximately 30 pages, due on the last day of the exam period). Students must satisfactorily complete and pass all assignments in order to pass the course.

Facility, Accessibility and Academic Accommodation:

The WSÁNEĆ field course's "home-base" will be at the ŁÁU, WELNEW Tribal School (7449 West Saanich Road) on the Tsartlip First Nation reserve. The classroom components and all field trips will leave from this location. Students may also use this location as a workspace during their community-based projects. Students must be able to commute to this location from the James Island ferry dock (approx. 10 min drive) on a daily basis (by car, or carpool with other students). A refrigerator and kitchen is available at this location to store packed lunches. Students should generally expect to be engaged in course learning / work from Monday – Friday, and roughly 9:00am to 4:00 or 5:00pm.

The WSÁNEĆ law field course will run during the Fall term and is structured around a number of place-based outings and field trips. While the majority of the field trips will take place during the earlier portion of the term (hopefully taking advantage of the nicer weather) there is always a chance of rainy and cool weather. Field trips and camping trips will take place regardless of the weather, and students must be adequately prepared and equipped to spend entire days outside. Students will also be taking a 3-night camping trip to the Gulf Islands. Students will require adequate camping materials for this trip (including tent, sleeping bag, appropriate clothing, tableware, etc.). Meals will be provided during the camping trip.

The field and camping trips for this course involve travel to a variety of rivers, mountains, and other locations. Paths to these locations may be gravel or rock/dirt and somewhat steep at times.

Disability-related accommodations must be requested and addressed prior to the start of the course. Students with concerns regarding accessibility or accommodation should contact Rob Clifford (clifford@allard.ubc.ca) or Assistant Dean, Kaila Mikkelsen (mikkelsen@allard.ubc.ca).

Community Supervisors:

The middle portion of the WSÁNEĆ law field course will include an 8-week community placement project. During this time students' primary point of contact will be assigned community supervisors. While this portion of the class will require students to be independent in their work, students will remain in contact with each other through weekly class meetings. Students may also contact the course instructor as needed.

Authorization for Consent to Medical Treatment:

Students will be asked to sign an authorization for consent to medical treatment in case of emergency and will be required to provide contact information for one person who is not enrolled in the course.
