

GRADUATE PROGRAM BROWN BAG LUNCH SERIES:
September Careers Focus

Career planning as a graduate student

Please join us in the first of a series of brown-bag lunchtime programming that the Graduate Program will be offering on Wednesdays from 12:30 to 2 pm throughout the 2022-23 academic year.

During the month of September we will be focusing on careers and will feature alumni of our graduate programs, faculty members and other resource facilitators.

For our inaugural session the Graduate Law Program is pleased to welcome:

Danielle Barkley

PhD, Graduate Career Educator, UBC Centre for Student Involvement and Careers

"The Centre for Student Involvement and Careers is a hub of career development expertise, programs, initiatives, and resources integrated within the full range of students' academic, co-curricular, and extra-curricular experiences. The Centre works in partnership with Faculties to support students in becoming career-ready graduates.

Graduate students, including Masters and PhD at any discipline and any stage of their program, can access services related to career advising and development through the Centre. Students can also access services for up to 1 year post-graduation.

Danielle Barkley, PhD, works as the Graduate Career Educator and can serve as the key point of contact for inquiries related to graduate students. You may contact her at danielle.barkley@ubc.ca.

Please note that this session will be held both in person and via Zoom. If you are interested in attending kindly RSVP, by no later than noon on Tuesday, September 13th, to: Carlos Nunez: nunez@allard.ubc.ca, provide your name, email address, the program you are in and indicate whether you will be attending in person or by Zoom; once we know who will be attending by Zoom we will send the Zoom information.
