

PERMISSION FOR A NON-LAW STUDENT TO REGISTER IN A LAW COURSE ACADEMIC YEAR 2025-2026

The Juris Doctor (J.D.) program is designed to allow law students to advance from compulsory, “building-block,” courses in first year to more advanced courses in upper years. Space may be available for qualified non-law students to take upper year courses (300- and 400-level courses). You are considered a non-law student if you are not currently enrolled as a law student in the Peter A. Allard School of Law.

Before you complete this form, please note:

1. NCA (National Committee on Accreditation)

If you hold a law degree from a foreign jurisdiction and are applying to take law courses to satisfy NCA (National Committee on Accreditation) requirements that are not offered through the Online Learning at Allard courses, you must contact the Director of Professional Programs by e-mail at distancelearning@allard.ubc.ca before submitting this form. Applicants who request courses offered through the Online Learning at Allard courses will have their request denied.

2. Current UBC Undergraduate and Graduate Students

Unless the law course that you choose is relevant to your degree, it is unlikely that your request to register in a law course (credit/audit) will be approved. Your Advisor’s signature is required on this form to ensure that the course requested is relevant to your degree.

To determine your eligibility for a law course, it may be necessary to view your UBC academic record. By completing and submitting this form, you are allowing UBC Law to access your UBC academic record.

3. Students on Exchange at UBC

If you are studying in UBC as an Exchange student, you are not eligible. Do not complete this form.

4. Unclassified Admission Category

If you are not a current UBC student and are interested in applying to take one or two law courses for interest or career enhancement, then contact UBC Enrolment Services by phone at (604) 822-9836 or online and apply for admission under their “Unclassified” category. Before you complete this form, you must already be a UBC “Unclassified” student for the current academic year with an active student number.

Please note, registering in a law course (for credit) as a non-law student does not heighten your eligibility for admission to the JD program, nor will the credits earned taking a course(s) as a non-law student be transferred to a JD degree should you be admitted to and enroll in the JD program in future.

5. A non-law student cannot apply to take:
 - a) first-year law courses (200-level courses)
 - b) UBC Law compulsory courses (LAW 300 Jurisprudence and Critical Perspectives, LAW 304 Transnational Law, LAW 347 Federalism, LAW 372 Administrative Law, LAW 468 Ethics and Professionalism)
 - c) summer term courses
 - d) Clinics, Externships or any Experiential Learning courses as noted in the Allard Law upper year course listings
 - e) courses in the Distance Learning Program
 - f) 500- and 600-level courses including courses in the LLM Master of Laws, LLM CL Master of Laws (Common Law) and LLMT Master of Laws (Taxation) programs
 6. Registration in a law course for a non-law student is subject to the approval of the UBC Law Associate Dean, Academic Affairs, followed by the approval of the course instructor and only if there is seat availability. The Associate Dean reviews all fall term applications in mid-August and all spring term applications in mid-December. Applicants are notified of the Associate Dean and instructors' decisions in late August for fall term applications and in late December for spring term applications.
 7. Registration priority is given to currently enrolled law students and there may be no room in certain courses for non-law students. If your application is approved, your registration in a law course is subject to seat availability and cannot be confirmed until the first day of the term in which the class is held.
